

BabelNet and Beyond: Two ERC Projects

Roberto Navigli

DIPARTIMENTO
DI INFORMATICA

SAPIENZA
UNIVERSITÀ DI ROMA

Multilingual Natural Language Processing in Rome

Team

- Prof. Roberto Navigli
 - Principal investigator of several projects, including:
 - ERC Starting Grant (MultiJEDI, 2011-2016, 1.3M €)
 - ERC Consolidator Grant (MOUSSE, 2017-2022, 1.5M €)
 - Google Focused Research Award (co-PI, 300k €)
- 15 young researchers (Ph.D. students, post-docs)

Google
Focused Research Awards

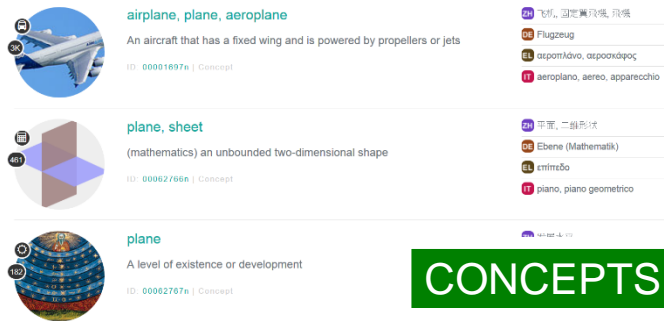

Research fields

- Computational lexical semantics
- Semantic parsing
- Text understanding
- Multilinguality

2 ERC projects in NLP led by prof. Roberto Navigli, Sapienza

erc MultiJEDI (2011-16)

- 1 Large multilingual repository of concepts: BabelNet

CONCEPTS

- 2 Disambiguation outputs a bag of concepts

The employer fired the programmers from the software company .

DISAMBIGUATION

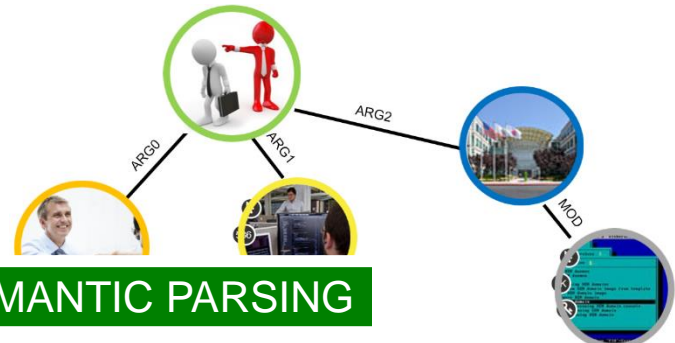

erc MOUSSE (2017-22)

- 1 Huge repository of novel structured universal semantic representations

SENTENCE REPRESENTATIONS

- 2 We are constructing a language-independent structured semantic representation of the sentence

SEMANTIC PARSING

Multilingual Machine Reading at Sapienza, Rome

- Why? Machines can “read” and analyze the entire Web
- Answer all kinds of questions, summarize, translate, etc.

Key goal: deriving meaning from natural language by overcoming its inherent complexities

The future of BabelNet and related technologies

- We created a Sapienza spinoff, Babelscape, with the key objective of making BabelNet and multilingual NLP technologies sustainable
- Income is reinvested in BabelNet and subsequent projects
- Currently working for the EU and big multinational companies

Babelscape

— Multilinguality at your fingertips

Interconnect information in your texts across languages

Some suggestions for an ERC project

- Work on your CV
 - Publications in top conferences and journals
 - Visibility (organization of workshops, tutorials, area chairs, etc.)
- Be ambitious, be brave
 - Novel, groundbreaking research
- Be one of the few who can propose that project
- Be sure to
- Prepare your presentation carefully